What is the theme of ali baba and the forty thieves

We often see a good fortune as happening only to those who acted nobly and therefore deserve a happy ending. After all, literature is full of countless stories and stories that focus on a heroic figure that bravely follows a moral code and is rewarded at the end of history. Unfortunately, reality is often very different from fictional literature. The protagonists of history often do not deserve the rewards they accumulate, and good things often occur to those who cannot deserve such benefits. It is interesting then to examine two pieces of literature that portray the protagonist as someone who has not earned good fortune through courageous actions or just actions. These stories are not confined to a particular culture, but come from Western and Islamic literature and contain some similar elements. We will examine the story of Ali Baba and the forty thieves and compare it with the classic novel Great expectations. Both try to present the unfair nature of life and therefore are timeless pieces of literature. Ali Baba and the forty thieves is an Arab popular legend that was originally written by a French translator in the 18th century. The story follows the story of Ali Baba, a poor woodcut that becomes rich through a variety of lucky events. Although Ali Baba is not the most interesting character or even the true hero of history, that title belonging to his slave girl Morgiana, it is interesting to examine his growth in wealth. AliHe married a poor woman and became a woodcut, unlike his brother who married in a rich family. One day, while cutting firewood in the jungle, Ali Baba saw a group of thieves enter a secret treasure cave. After the thieves moved away, Ali Baba entered the cave and took some of the treasure. When he comes home, his brother discovers his fortune and forces Ali Baba to tell him where the cave is. The brother comes back, but he's stuck in the cave and is killed by the robbers. Ali Baba finds his dead brother in the cave and buried him through the help of the Morgiana slave. When the robbers discover that Ali Baba's brother's body is missing, they determine that another person must know the secret of their treasure. They try to find the location of Ali Baba's house, but are hampered by Morgiana's actions. When the chief robber finds out where Ali Baba lives, he gets access to the house with his men, but is again impeded through the ingeniousness of Morgiana who is able to kill all thieves except the leader. The leader leaves but then returns disguised as a merchant and again enters the house of Ali Baba. For the last time, Morgiana saves Ali Baba's life and kills the thief's captain, and Ali Baba lives happily for the rest of his life rich in the thief's treasure. (Ali Baba showing Morgiana the treasure) Robida - Ali-baba_page4.jpg Although Great expectations is set in a different time period and has afeeling of ali baba and forty thieves, contains many of the same characteristics. the character of the man is a young man named pip who was born in a poor middle-class family. as a young teenager, it is removed from this environment by a mysterious benefactor to live in London and become a gentleman. pip believes that he was helped by an elderly lady who pip had friendship as a child and whose department had been the secret interest of pip. pip lives a frivolous life in London until he learns the true nature of his benefactor, a convicted pip who had helped as a small child. After this discovery, the life of pip declines rapidly of quality, since pip can no longer afford to live on the money of the condemned. pip is forced to leave the country to find work and its perspectives of life appear bleak. However, the story ends on a happy note as pip returns and restores its relationship with its old love interest and seems to have a happy future in Serbian. (pip meets his benefactor) Pip-magwitch.jpg although these two stories have many different elements, both share a common theme. both characters don't deserve the good fortune that falls. ali baba simply saw where the treasure of the robbers was, but he did nothing to gain his wealth. Moreover, it cannot be considered in possession of a great intellectual capacity as it fails to recognize the head of the thief even after seeing it on two separate occasions. it takes courage and intellectThe Morgiana slave to save Ali Baba from being killed by the thief's boss. Pip also does not deserve the fortune he gave him as the reason why his status in society improved is due to his help a thief as a young boy. Since this help was out of fear and not generosity, does Pip really deserve this good fortune? However, the story of Pip differs from Ali Baba while experiencing a period of less fortuited circumstances and losses his good fortune. However, in the end Pip meets with his love interest and does not seem to have learned a lesson from his experiences, much like Ali Baba who continues to blindly allow the thief leader in his home. Thus, an important morality given by both stories is the fictitious nature of luck and that sometimes those who deserve are granted that they may belong to the most worthy. He deserves it. what is the theme of the story ali baba and the forty thieves. what is the main theme of the story ali baba and the forty thieves. what is the moral of ali baba and the forty thieves
