In GTA Online, rank and status are just as important as money, as they allow you to unlock numerous advantages, from weapons to discounts to vehicles. To get RP and level up, there are a handful of things you'll want to prioritize. Here is everything you need to know about how to get RP and level up fast in GTA Online so that you're ahead of the competition. How to Get RP & Level Up Fast Missions The most straightforward way of earning RP and leveling up is simply by completing missions throughout the game. These can be completed either alone or with other players. The higher the difficulty setting is, and the better you do, the higher your reward will end up being. You can see the exact amount of RP and experience that you'll be granted before starting the mission. Spin the Lucky Wheel – Getting RP Fast in GTA Online If you've got lady luck on your side and a ton of spare cash to blow, giving the Lucky Wheel a spin at the Diamond Casino and Resort is always a surefire way to net at least something of value. In total, there are 20 different prizes you can earn. Of the 20 prizes, five of them give out RP, meaning have a 25% chance of winning between 2,500 to 15,000 RP awards. On top of this, hitting the Podium Vehicle for a second time nets 20,000 RP. CEO Crates and VIP Work Just like any other CEO, GTA Online rewards players for gaming the system. To be exact, selling the CEO crates you can get while playing the section of the game nets you huge rewards. These items can be picked up by completing multi-mission assignments, known as Special Cargo. You'll need to purchase the mission, then complete them without being taken out by NPCs or other players before getting back to your warehouse. Once you sell them, you'll get the money and a large amount of RP for all of your hard work. These tend to take around 10 to 15 minutes to complete. VIP work is a little quicker, taking you about five to ten minutes to complete various missions for about half of the reward. These jobs can be completed when you reach VIP/CEO by helping out other players. Level Cap With all of that RP in your pocket, you're probably wondering what the level cap in GTA Online sits at. Currently, the rank limit is 8,000. Due to the sheer amount of time it takes to level up, though, it is extremely likely that any player over the 2,000 mark is using a modded account. And that is everything you need to know about how to get RP and level up fast in GTA Online. For more GTA Online FAQ, tips, and tricks, be sure to search Twinfinite. Helpfully we've taken the time to pinpoint some tips on how to earn reputation and level up fast in GTA Online, so you can catch up to the people who've been logged on since launch day. Spin the Lucky Wheel in the Casino (Image credit: Rockstar Games) Inside the Diamond Casino and Resort you'll find the Lucky Wheel, which you can spin every day for a chance to win one of 20 prizes. Five of these are RP related, ranging from 2,500 to 15,000 RP awards, so you have a 25% chance of increasing your reputation with each spin. If you've already won the Podium Vehicle, then hit the vehicle award slot again before the weekly update refreshes the podium, you'll bank a huge 20,000 RP! Better still, if you want to follow this method to level up fast, you can use the GTA Online Lucky Wheel glitch to have as many spins as you need to hit the prize you're after. Focus on Adversary Modes Adversary modes brought crazy new group vs group scenarios where teams would usually play out classic movie scenes, most of which would involve one group surviving an assault from the other. These missions, that are highlighted by the Tron-inspired Deadline, can net you a ton of reputation since they are classified as longer missions. They can bring in thousands of points, and are just crazy fun to play – you'll need a team though, as they can't be done alone. Once you get to rank 12, you'll be able to retrieve crate drops that happen all over the map. Before it happens you'll receive a notification on the top right corner of the screen, followed by markings on the mini map that tell you where it's been dropped. You'll have to kill a few well armed NPCs that defend the drop, but once you do you could open up the crate to find 3,000 reputation points – some special drops have 5,000 RP. It's one of the best ways to gain RP, that's widely agreed upon throughout the GTA Online community. Check the Newswire Every Tuesday Rockstar updates their Newswire with new info and details about events that offer double the reputation. This can include specific mission types or special playlists that they put together for a unique event. No matter what it ends up being, it's a great opportunity to get extra RP and cash. Checking the Newswire can also give you tips on how to get discounts on certain vehicle purchases and free items, so it's in your best interest to bookmark that baby. Join an organization GTA Online lets you do way more than just petty one-off crimes, it lets you build an empire. Players can buy an office once they have enough money and start their own organization, and other players can then join as associates. This will be a good source of RP since you'll have access to a group of like-minded individuals that actually want to get stuff done. You can easily earn on your own, but completing missions with a group – including many of the ones featured in this list – will earn you a nice bonus alongside your typical cut. You can earn up to 500 RP for just completing a race, you don't even need to win it. This isn't as much as other missions might net you, but races are over much faster and can be done in quick succession if you want to rack up points quickly. The Criminal Record race can be finished in half a minute if set to only one lap. This is also better suited for starting out since it's an easier task to tackle, however it's not recommended once you've reached the upper echelon of GTA Online ranks. Lose the Cops While not the most efficient way to build up experience, losing the cops after building a wanted level is a consistent way to earn reputation. Each star wanted level brings in another 100 points, but be careful going for those higher levels since it can be incredibly difficult, or at least time consuming, when trying to ditch a trail that hot. This is also one of the most enjoyable ways to gain reputation since you can do almost anything you want to gain the cops attention, much like the single player campaign. It's best to gain a wanted level by either stealing a car or killing another player, since both actions will also get you some RP on their own. Build a playlist with the best missions Completing missions is the intended way to gain RP, as they're the bulk of GTA Online and contain all sorts of objectives and play styles. You can compile some of the missions that give out the most RP in a playlist, either by yourself or with a crew, to tackle them efficiently. Remember that missions unlock at certain ranks so you won't be able to access them all at once.
